

Yoga

7-Day Beginner Yoga Flow: Flexibility & Calm Masterclass

Your gentle gateway to lifelong flexibility, strength, and inner peace

What's inside this guide:

- ✓ 7 progressive daily video lessons (10 mins each) that build flexibility safely without injury risk
- ✓ Printable pose guide with Sanskrit names, modifications, and alignment cues for home practice
- ✓ Breathing techniques (pranayama) module to activate your nervous system and reduce stress instantly
- ✓ Lifetime access to community support group and bonus restorative yoga session for deep relaxation

Welcome

Welcome to your transformative 7-day yoga journey! This masterclass is specifically designed for absolute beginners who want to experience the life-changing benefits of yoga without intimidation or injury risk. In just 10 minutes daily, you'll build a strong foundation that will serve you for years to come.

Day 1: Foundation & Breath Awareness

Your yoga journey begins with establishing proper breathing and basic posture alignment. Today's 10-minute flow introduces you to ujjayi breath (ocean breath) and four fundamental poses: Mountain Pose, Child's Pose, Cat-Cow, and Downward Dog. Start in a comfortable seated position, spine tall but not rigid. Place one hand on your chest, one on your belly, and breathe naturally for 2 minutes, noticing which hand moves more. This awareness will guide your practice. Move into Mountain Pose (Tadasana) by standing with feet hip-width apart, arms at sides, crown of head reaching toward ceiling. Feel your connection to the earth while growing tall like a tree. Hold for 1 minute, breathing deeply. Transition to hands and knees for Cat-Cow stretches, moving slowly between arching and rounding your spine for 2 minutes. End with Child's Pose (Balasana) by sitting back on your heels, knees apart, arms extended forward. This is your safe haven pose - return here anytime you need rest. Your first day establishes the rhythm of conscious movement with breath, creating the foundation for all future practices.

- Keep a yoga journal to track how you feel before and after each session
 - Set up your space the night before with your mat, water, and any props
 - Focus on breathing through your nose throughout the entire practice
 - Never force any position - discomfort is okay, sharp pain is not
-

Day 2: Building Heat & Core Connection

Today we introduce gentle heat-building movements and activate your core muscles safely. Your sequence includes Sun Salutation A (modified), Plank Pose hold, and Cobra Pose. Begin with 3 rounds of breath awareness, then move into your first Sun Salutation. From Mountain Pose, sweep arms overhead on inhale, fold forward on exhale, step back to plank on inhale, lower to belly on exhale, lift chest in Cobra on inhale, then reverse the sequence. Core engagement happens naturally in yoga when you breathe properly and maintain good alignment. During Plank Pose, start with 15-second holds and build gradually. Keep your body in one straight line from head to heels, engaging your abdominal muscles by gently drawing your navel toward your spine. If full plank is challenging, drop your knees to the mat while maintaining the same upper body alignment. Cobra Pose (Bhujangasana) strengthens your back while opening your heart. Lie face down, palms under shoulders, and press down through your hands to lift your chest. Keep your pelvis grounded and shoulders away from your ears. Start with small lifts and gradually increase as your back strength develops over the week.

- Move slowly between poses to build strength and control
 - Engage your core by imagining you're wearing a gentle corset around your midsection
 - In Cobra, use your back muscles more than your arms to lift your chest
 - Rest in Child's Pose between challenging sequences if needed
-

Day 3: Hip Opening & Lower Body Flow

Hip flexibility is crucial for overall mobility and stress release, as we store emotional tension in our hips. Today's flow focuses on gentle hip opening through Low Lunge, Pigeon Prep, and Figure-4 stretch. These poses will improve your daily movement patterns and reduce lower back tension that comes from sitting. Begin with hip circles in a seated position - sit cross-legged and gently circle your torso, feeling the movement initiate from your hips. Move into Low Lunge by stepping your right foot forward between your hands from Downward Dog, lowering your left knee to the mat. Keep your front knee over your ankle and sink your hips forward gently. Hold for 1 minute each side, breathing deeply into any sensation. Pigeon Prep is accessed from hands and knees by bringing your right shin parallel to the front of your mat, extending your left leg straight back. Fold forward over your front leg as comfort allows. This intense hip opener requires patience - never force the position. Use a pillow under your front hip if needed for support. The Figure-4 stretch can be done lying on your back, making it accessible for everyone regardless of flexibility level.

- Breathe deeply into tight areas to encourage release
 - Use props like pillows or blocks generously for comfort in hip openers
 - Hold hip opening poses for longer periods (30-60 seconds) for maximum benefit
 - Expect some emotional release during hip openers - this is normal and healthy
-

Day 4: Heart Opening & Upper Body Strength

Modern life creates rounded shoulders and closed hearts from computer work and stress. Today's practice counteracts this pattern with gentle backbends and upper body strengthening poses including Camel Pose (modified), Bridge Pose, and Sphinx Pose. Heart opening poses not only improve posture but also boost confidence and emotional well-being. Start with gentle shoulder rolls and arm circles to warm up your shoulder joints. Bridge Pose (Setu Bandhasana) is an accessible backbend that strengthens your glutes and opens your chest simultaneously. Lie on your back, knees bent, feet hip-width apart. Press down through your feet to lift your hips, creating a diagonal line from knees to shoulders. Hold for 30 seconds, breathing smoothly. Sphinx Pose provides a gentler alternative to Cobra, offering the same heart-opening benefits with more support. Lie on your belly, forearms on the mat, elbows under shoulders. Press your forearms down and lift your chest, keeping your shoulders relaxed. For modified Camel, kneel with shins on the mat, place hands on your lower back, and gently arch backward, leading with your heart rather than your head.

- Keep your neck neutral in backbends - don't crane your head back
 - Engage your leg muscles in Bridge Pose to protect your lower back
 - Start with smaller backbends and gradually increase the intensity over time
 - Follow heart opening poses with gentle forward folds to balance your spine
-

Day 5: Balance & Focus Training

Balance poses train your mind as much as your body, developing concentration and proprioception. Today's practice includes Tree Pose, Warrior III (modified), and Eagle Pose. These poses strengthen your stabilizing muscles while teaching you to find steadiness amid challenge - a skill that transfers beautifully to daily life. Tree Pose (Vrksasana) is your introduction to single-leg balancing. Stand in Mountain Pose, then place your right foot on your left inner thigh, calf, or ankle - never directly on the side of the knee. Press your foot into your leg and your leg into your foot, creating active stability. Bring your hands to prayer at your heart or extend them overhead like branches. Start with 15-second holds and build to 30 seconds. For Warrior III preparation, start in a forward fold, then lift one leg behind you while keeping your hands on the floor or blocks. This builds the strength and awareness needed for the full pose. Eagle Pose (Garudasana) challenges your balance while stretching your shoulders and hips. Wrap your right arm under your left, right leg over your left, and sit back slightly as if sitting in a chair.

- Focus your gaze on a single point (drishti) to improve balance
 - Use a wall for support when learning standing balance poses
 - Wobbling is normal and actually shows your stabilizing muscles are working
 - Practice balance poses consistently - they improve quickly with regular practice
-

Day 6: Deep Stretch & Flexibility Focus

Today emphasizes longer-held poses to increase flexibility and promote deep relaxation. Your practice includes Extended Triangle, Seated Forward Fold, and Supine Spinal Twist. These poses target major muscle groups that tend to be tight from daily activities, particularly your hamstrings, spine, and IT bands. Triangle Pose (Trikonasana) creates length through your entire side body while strengthening your legs. Stand with feet 3-4 feet apart, turn your right foot out 90 degrees, left foot in 15 degrees. Reach your right hand toward your right shin, ankle, or a block while extending your left arm toward the ceiling. Keep both sides of your waist long and avoid collapsing over your front leg. Seated Forward Fold (Paschimottanasana) stretches your entire back line - hamstrings, calves, and spine. Sit with legs extended, hands on your thighs, and slowly walk your hands down your legs as you fold forward. Focus on lengthening your spine rather than forcing your head toward your knees. Hold for 2 minutes, breathing into the stretch. End with Supine Spinal Twist by lying on your back, drawing your right knee to your chest, then letting it fall across your body to the left while keeping your right shoulder grounded.

- Hold stretching poses for 1-2 minutes minimum for lasting flexibility gains
 - Focus on lengthening your spine before deepening any forward fold
 - Use props like blocks or straps to make poses more accessible
 - Breathe deeply and consistently to encourage muscle release
-

Day 7: Integration & Celebration Flow

Your final day combines elements from the entire week into a flowing sequence that celebrates your progress and establishes a sustainable practice routine. This integration flow moves smoothly between poses you've learned, building confidence and muscle memory. You'll perform a complete Sun Salutation A, hold balance poses with greater ease, and move into deeper stretches than you could on Day 1. Begin with a moment of gratitude for your commitment to this week-long journey. Notice how your relationship with your breath has evolved, how your body feels more open and strong, and how your mind feels calmer during movement. Today's 10-minute flow includes 2 rounds of Sun Salutation A, a standing sequence with Warrior II and Triangle, a seated sequence with spinal twists, and a longer final relaxation. End your practice in Savasana (Corpse Pose) for 3 minutes, lying flat on your back, arms at sides, palms up. This final relaxation allows your nervous system to integrate all the benefits of your practice. Scan your body from head to toe, noticing areas of release and openness. This is where the real magic of yoga happens - in the stillness after movement.

- Take photos or videos of yourself in poses from Day 1 and Day 7 to see your progress
 - Set an intention for your continued yoga practice beyond this week
 - Notice improvements in how you feel, not just how you look in poses
 - Celebrate every small victory - consistency matters more than perfection
-

■ Bonus Tip

Create a 'yoga ritual' by practicing at the same time each day and setting up your space mindfully. This consistency will help yoga become a natural, non-negotiable part of your routine, just like brushing your teeth. Your future self will thank you for this gift of daily movement and mindfulness.

Final Words

Congratulations on completing your 7-Day Beginner Yoga Flow Masterclass! You've built a strong foundation in breath awareness, basic poses, and mindful movement that will serve you throughout your yoga journey. Remember that yoga is a practice, not a perfection - every time you return to your mat, you're exactly where you need to be. Use your printable pose guide for daily reference, continue with your bonus restorative session when you need deeper relaxation, and stay connected with our community for ongoing support and motivation.